Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1-6 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 1 and 5-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Peng et al (U.S. patent 6,252,671) in view of Bennett (U.S. patent 5,144,330)

Regarding claim 1 and 6 Peng et al disclose: A method of displaying type face to be displayed on an output device comprising: decomposing a glyph to be displayed into constituent pieces (please note column 2 lines 28-29 where the glyph is breaking to one or more blocks of Glyph) reconstructing said glyph by combining said at least one constituent piece of said glyph with other constituent pieces of said glyph (please note column 2 lines 32-34 where the pieces of glyph are stitched or reconstructed together) However Peng et al does not quite disclose: using at least one of a computer printing program or print driver for adding a characteristic to at least one constituent piece of said glyph to create printable type face comprised of glyphs with graphical effects. On the other hand Bennett discloses: using at least one of a computer printing program or print driver for (please note Fig.4, column 9 lines 23-25 where the printing program is used to carry the alteration of the font) adding a characteristic to at least one constituent piece of said glyph to create printable type face comprised of glyphs with graphical effects (please note column 9 lines 13-25 where the size of the character, including height and width may be altered while maintaining the same character font). Therefore it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in art at the time of the invention to modify Peng et al's invention according to the teaching of Bennett, where Bennett in the same filed of endeavor teaches the way the altered font was prepared to be sent to the printer for the purpose of further taking the customization of the font to be printable using the printing program.

Regarding claim 5 Peng et al disclose: The method of claim 1 further comprised of the step of smoothing intersections of said constituent pieces of said glyph after reconstructing said glyph by combining said at least one constituent piece of said glyph with other constituent pieces of said glyph (please note column 8 lines 15-18).

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 2-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Peng et al (U.S. patent 6,252,671) in view of Bennett (U.S. patent 5,144,330) and further in view of Morse et al (U.S. patent 5,590,260)

Regarding claim 2 neither Peng et al nor Bennett quite disclose: claim 1 wherein said step of adding a characteristic to at least one constituent piece of said glyph includes the steps of adding an addressable color to said at least one constituent piece of said glyph. On the other hand Morse et al disclose: The method of claim 1 wherein said step of adding a characteristic to at least one constituent piece of said glyph includes the steps of adding an addressable color to said at least one constituent piece of said glyph (please note column 11 lines 32-41). Therefore it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in art at the time of the invention to modify Peng et al and Bennett's invention according to the teaching of Morse et al, where Morse et al in the same filed of endeavor teach the way the glyph is being customized by being able to combine coloring of the font for the purpose of making it more animated.

Regarding claim 3 Morse et al disclose: The method of claim 1 wherein the step of adding a characteristic to at least one constituent piece of said glyph includes the steps of adding a texture to said at least one constituent piece of said glyph (please note column 12 lines 40-41).

Regarding claim 4 Morse et al disclose: The method of claim 1 wherein the step of adding a characteristic to at least one constituent piece of said glyph includes the steps of adding a pattern to said at least one constituent piece of said glyph (please note column 6 lines 25-28).

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
